

Chartridge Conference Company upgrades Free Wi-Fi service

Chartridge Conference Company has just invested in excess of £25,000 in a major upgrade to the Wi-Fi broadband coverage at all four of their conference venues in the Home Counties and West Midlands. This new system is the latest development to ensure that all facilities meet customer demand and means that visitors can now access the free Wi-Fi service in all areas within each venue.

“With more and more customers requiring access to broadband during their stay, we found that although we provided a free Wi-Fi service, our systems were being stretched to the limit and didn’t provide the range of coverage that they needed.” commented managing director Peter Darnell. “We have not only upgraded to the maximum bandwidth currently achievable at each of the venues, but we have also invested in the very latest fully managed system. This balances access to the service evenly throughout each centre according to demand and means that all our customers can now receive a free high speed Wi-Fi service whether they are in the conference rooms, rest areas or working in their bedrooms.”

All Chartridge venues are classic character buildings in secluded locations and built well before wireless broadband became a standard business requirement. The new Wi-Fi system had to take into account the traditional construction techniques used in these historic buildings including the thick stone walls and floors to ensure that effective Wi-Fi reception could be achieved in all areas. Additional transmitters had to be installed in strategic locations, but after several weeks of rigorous testing, the system has passed with flying colours.

Darnell added, “Chartridge has established a reputation for quality service but we never rest on our laurels. This new investment underlines our policy of responding to customer expectations, so whichever Chartridge venue they visit, it will be an enjoyable and rewarding experience.”
