

Local Utility company celebrate with their families at Lydiard House

Employees of RWE npower and their families had a great bonding day at Lydiard House, when the West Swindon-based company held their second Family Party Day at the Palladian stately house as thanks to staff for all their dedication during these hard times.

It was a day for the whole family, so a wide range of fun activities were laid on. The ever popular face painting and a Jungle Playbus kept the children entertained during the day, while a magician kept both children and adults intrigued with his mystical talents. The adults could also try their hand at blackjack and roulette in the casino game, but as the stakes were in 'pretend' money, all the party goers went home with their wallets and purses intact.

The guests were able to make full use of the patio, lawns and gardens at Lydiard House, but Chartridge Conference Company who arranged the event, also erected a huge marquee, just in case the weather followed the usual British summer pattern that we have come to expect.

"The location was ideal as we had over 110 people attending," commented Lynette Shearn who organised the day for RWE npower. "The children's events were spot on, and the casino tables also went down well as they created a very good atmosphere for the adults to have a bit of fun away from the kids for a while. The thing that made a real difference was the marquee. Because of our British weather we have to play safe and choose an indoor venue, but being able to enjoy the entertainment and the barbecue without worries of the weather kept that summer feel and made it very special."

RWE n-power held their first Family Day last year in Lydiard Park, and have become such a success that they have decided to make it an annual event.
